"BEFORE THE WAR."

If the Israelites in the wilderness of Sin, "which is between Elim and Sinai," on the forty-fifth day of their deliverance and march from Egypt, could cry out, in view of threatened sufferings by the way, "would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt when we sat by the flesh-pots, and when we did eat bread to the full," it is unnatural that our Southern people, in view of all the agony that is past, and in the presence of surrounding trials and sufferings, should so often let fall from their lips these three words "before the war?" It has always impressed us that these simple words carry with them a meaning and a pathos indescribable. "Before the war!" Who, in all our Southern land, has not uttered them? If the Israelites could thus look back to the flesh-pots of Egypt, with the attendant slavery, the abject servitude, and the making of bricks without straw, how is it possible for our people to look back to that great period embraced in the words "before the war?" without the deepest sorrow and regret? In view of the homes destroyed, the fortunes ruined, the hopes and stays of families consigned to the dust, it is but natural. The generation that has suffered these ills can never, never forget! But regardless of the joys, the ease and comfort which clung around our old homesteads in the past, and regardless of the elegant refinement and hospitality which made Virginians peerless among the people of the earth in the social scale, we must remember that a new era has dawned upon us. It is not ours to mourn over the joys and the pleasures of the past when a stern present demands our action, and perhaps a still more exacting future awaits us. The first and only practical rule of life, is to be prepared, in view of our surroundings, to meet manfully every exigency as it arises. It is to this idea that rising young Virginia should be schooled. There is no hope in looking back to the past in a spirit of longing or repining because things are not as once they were. The past is irrevocably gone, and by manly action the young Virginians may make their future resplendent. We have often thought of that splendid sentiment of Lord Lytton, uttered by a character in one of his plays:

"Ah, not to the past,
But to the future looks true nobility,
And finds its blazon in posterity."
There is nothing truer. Many a man has literally "gone to seed" upon the reputation of his ancestors, and the same may be said of States and peoples. It is very well to have enjoyed the good things of this world "before the war." It is very well to have been sprung from an honored ancestry. And these things we would not treat lightly. But the stern present, with all of its exactions, is upon us, and the duty of our young men finds perfect expression in these lines:

"I would not were I fifty times a prince
Be a pensioner on the dead;
I honor birth and ancestry,
When they are the incentive to exertion,
And not the title-deeds to sloth.
I honor the laurels that overshadow the graves
Of my fathers,
And it is my fathers I emulate,
When I desire
That beneath the evergreen,
Which I myself have planted,
My own ashes may repose."

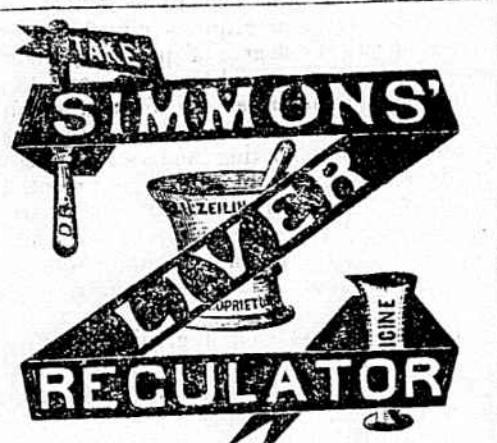

Let the people of Virginia, then, forgetting the ease and comfort which surrounded them in the past, and as far as possible putting behind them the animosities of the contest which robbed them of their all, look forward with that hope and spirit which have been the heritage of their race in all generations. Even in poverty and despondency there is no reason for despair. The government may trample upon our rights, the seasons may be unpropitious, a thousand ills may arise to torment and afflict them; but look ahead! Out of this very fiery furnace through which we have been passing for years we may emerge the purest, the noblest, and, if we dare say it, the ablest race of Virginians. When we study the portraits of the great men of the revolutionary era, we can but imagine that in all of them there is a singular similitude. There is in the countenance of each an evidence of trial and of suffering, and at the same time a sternness and fixedness of purpose, which are unmistakable. Let us perform our duty as well as they performed theirs, and it may be that our portraits will present something of the same appearance. But we will have the satisfaction of knowing that we clung to the right, the true old landmarks, and that those who come after us will glory in the full sunshine of liberty and prosperity.—Richmond Enquirer.

A MILLION BALES OF COTTON.—The Manchester Courier of the 23d of July says: "For some weeks there has been a considerable amount of speculation in the Liverpool Cotton Market as to whether the stock of cotton in the port would reach a million bales, and bets have been made very freely upon the point. A Friday or two ago, when the stock was made up, it had reached a total of 960,000 bales, when it began to fluctuate each Friday in the most uncertain manner, at one time reaching so high as 968,770 bales causing great excitement amongst those who had laid bets. Last week, however, the seven figures were attained, the stock standing at 1,003,900 bales, and it is understood that the amount of money which has changed hands in consequence has been very considerable."

A BOULEVARD.—Chicago proposes to build what is called a fire boulevard. The suggestion, as explained by the Tribune, is "that a belt of territory of the width of a block, should be purchased by the city and set apart as a people's park and boulevard, forming at the same time one of the greatest possible protections against and preventives of the spread of fire that can be devised." Such a boulevard, the Tribune says, will be built in twenty years. It will form a barrier beyond which fire could not extend, and, more than all, the editor adds: "It will penetrate the most thickly settled portions of the city, giving breathing space and relaxation to multitudes who are now confined to the crowded tenements and narrow streets where they live."

The Pulaski (Tenn.) Citizen declares that somebody living just beyond the Alabama line recently killed a rattlesnake which was twenty feet long and had seventy-five rattles. Snake stories are regarded by many people as utter apocryphal.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Its action is mild, effectual, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for FORTY YEARS, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR,
OR MEDICINE,
Is harmless,
Is no drastic violent medicine,
Is sure to cure if taken regularly,
Is no intoxicating beverage,

THE BEVERIDGE HOUSE,
Middleburg, Virginia.
The undersigned has leased this fine Hotel, and will open it for the reception of guests on the 1st of July, 1874.

It is a large and handsome house of 25 rooms;
the parlor, dining room and chambers are large and airy, and furnished in good style.
Middleburg is one of the prettiest and most healthy towns in Piedmont Virginia. It is situated in Loudoun county, 40 miles from Washington city, 16 miles from Leesburg, and 8 miles from the Plains station, O. A. & M. R. R., over which two points there are daily stages from well graded turnpike roads.

A MINERAL SPRING near the town has effected many cures of Dyspepsia, and is pronounced by the physicians of this section to be equal to any water in the State for this and kindred diseases.

The house will be kept in the best style, and every effort will be made to give entire satisfaction, and the charges will be moderate.

A LIVERY STABLE and BAR will be attached, and the Bar will be furnished with the best Wines, Liquors, Cigars, &c., that can be procured in the country.
